Emu Bay boat ramp - update

Monday 26 August 2019: There have been a number of complaints about the functionality of the Emu Bay boat ramp. Council has taken all users' complaints onboard and is currently reviewing the matters.

Council CEO Greg Georgopoulos said: "An assessment of the structure is being conducted this week by a qualified marine engineer.

"Once that assessment has been completed Council will determine whether the boat ramp can be left operating as is, or whether access will need to be restricted until the issues have been addressed.

"We would ask users to be mindful that the Emu Bay boat ramp is a fair weather marine facility without a breakwater structure."

Users should also note that the ramp is still under construction. Completion of the boat ramp and car park is scheduled for November to allow for bitumen sealing in warmer weather.

"We will work towards that timeframe to tackle any matters that need to be addressed arising from the engineer's assessment," he said.
